VOLUME III

Published by
Senior Class
of
Johnston County Tr. School

Foreword

We are producing the 1956 edition of the Hawk with this thought in mind; "Our success in the future will depend on the foundation we built in school; and the memories which we possess of the school's efforts to help us make the foundation a solid one, will aid us in becoming more successful.

Before anyone can attempt to build successfully on any foundation, the foundation must be solid. Here is where our most cherished memories have been crystalized.

This yearbook to us will be a memory book with a precious array of sparkling activities that we experienced during our high school years.

In producing this yearbook, we have anticipated that you, the reader, will enjoy it as much as we, the producers have in assembling it. From this message and other jeweled features, you will undeniably agree that we are building a solid foundation with cherished memories.

JOHNSTON COUNTY TRAINING SCHOOL

Smithfield, North Carolina

February 2, 1956

Dear Parents and Guardians:

We your sons and daughters dedicate this yearbook to you to show our appreciation for what you have done to make our better, best.

We have worked hard for this day which you made possible and we know you are as happy as we.

It will always be a joy to never forget you, Dear Parents and guardians, because you have worried over us, you have cried for us, you have made sacrifices for us, and have still shown a deep love for us.

May our achievements in life be fulfillments of all your dreams for our future.

Devotedly yours,
Your sons and daughters

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

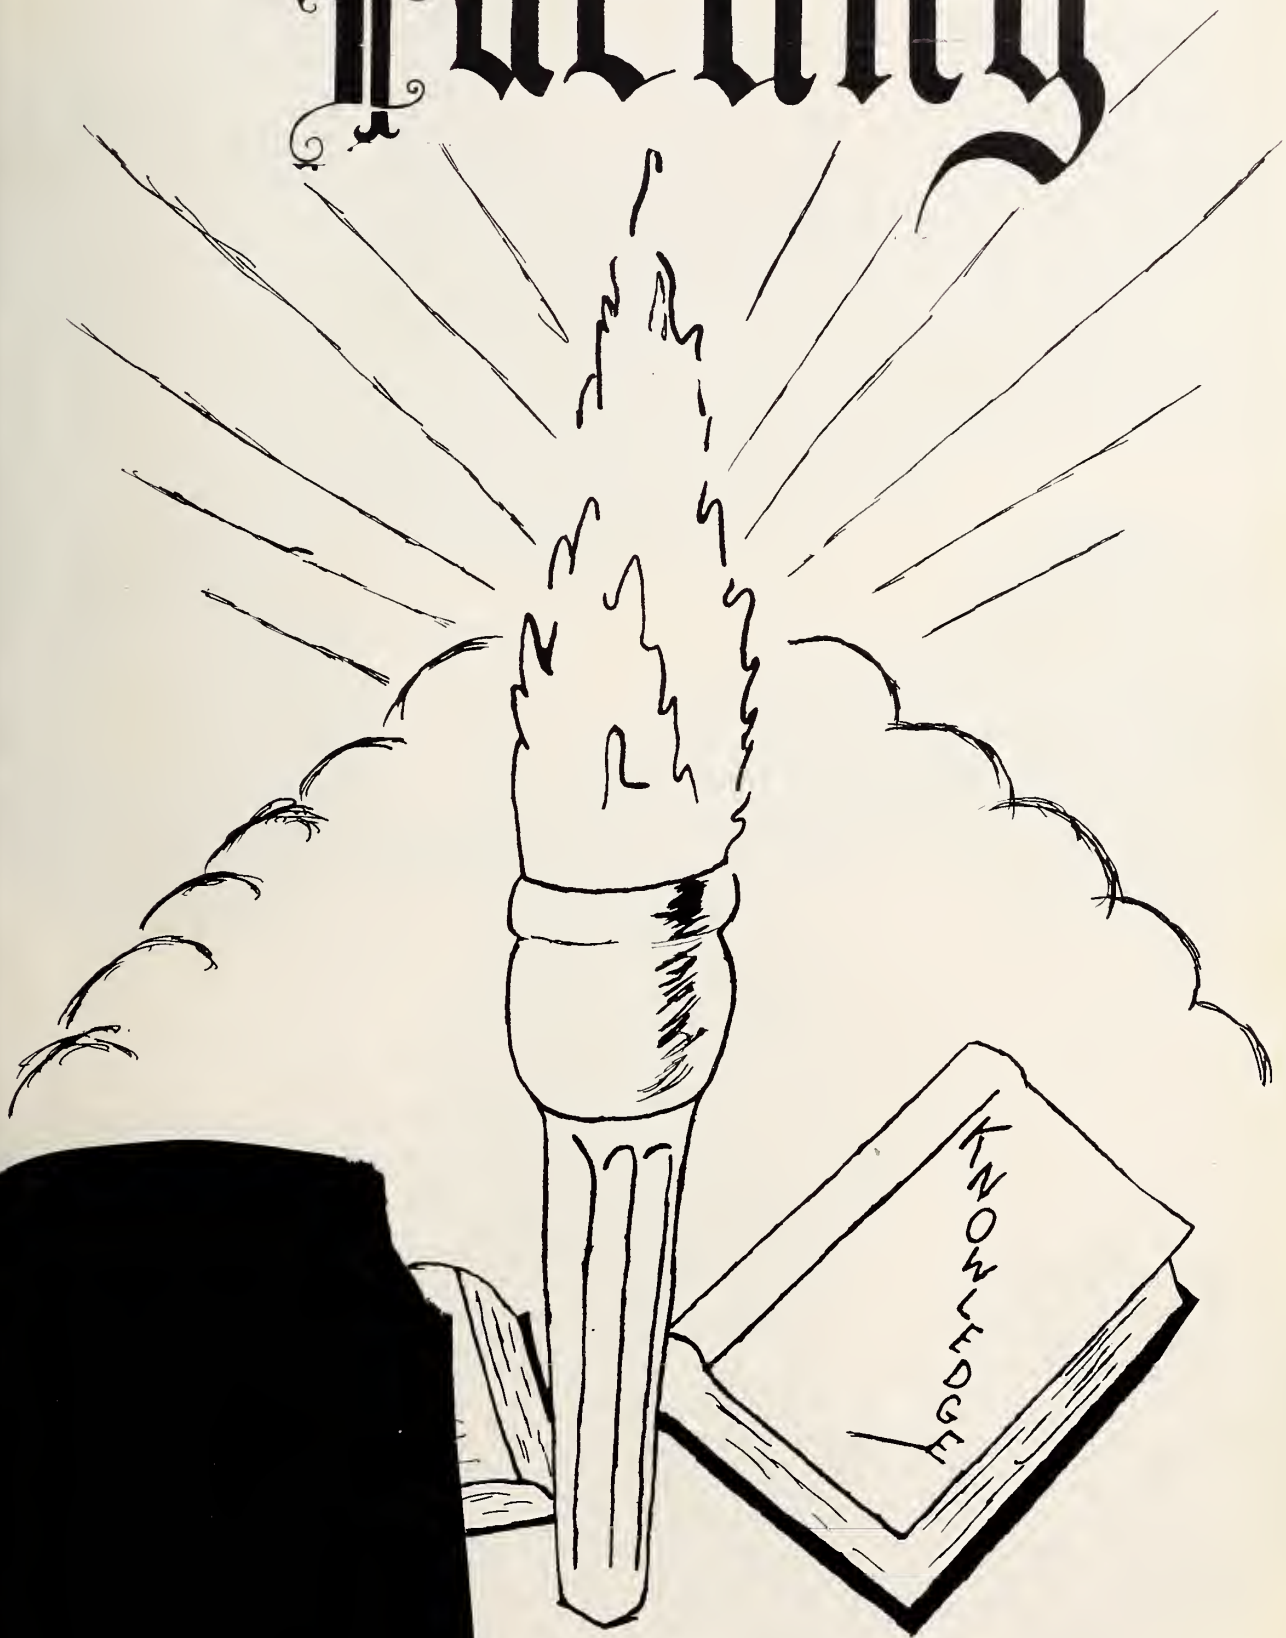

On the eve of the publication of the Hawk for '56, the Principal takes the opportunity to express greetings to the class.

This is the season in the year when the seniors are looking forward to graduation with greatest anticipation. Their hopes for the future have never been brighter, their enthusiasm and interest never keener, their outlook on life never more encouraging, and their cherished desires never more challenging. They will soon depart from the love of school, love of fellow students, and the love of teachers to either begin constructive, fruitful lives at home or pursue some educational course further for greater efficiency. Between these two choices should be found a larger percentage of the present class than from previous classes.

I congratulate you on your achievements to date. I rejoice with the teachers over what we have been able to share with you, and as a group we shall always cherish the warm relationship which characterized our experiences with you. The heights of success are yours, and we are looking to the heights for you.

CLASS SONG
(Auld Lang Syne)

Dear Training School,
We leave you now,
With memories of the past;
We must go dear Training School, dear J.C.T.S.

Four years we've studied very hard,
And now our goal's complete;
We love you so dear Training School,
We hate to leave you now.

Where'er we roam, what'er we do;
We'll carry thoughts of you,
We've learned, labored, hard and long,
Now we must go dear School.

To our friends, parents, teachers, too;
We bid you all farewell;
And to underclassmen, too
We're saying our last adieu.

Chorus

Dear Training School, we love you so
Dear Training School so fine;
We hate to leave you now dear School,
Dear J.C.T.S.

Ann Hilliard

Barbara Arrington

CLASS POEM

We have learned a lot of lessons since,
The year of fifty-two.
We now feel so very sorry,
To have to depart from you.

But since we have faced the hardships,
As so many more must do,
We are leaving you ole J.C.T.S.,
But your memory we'll hold true.

Tho' our high school days are ended,
And it seems our race is won,
We have not yet finished
We have only just begun!

In the years that we will labor,
Trying to make our lives sublime,
We all think of you, dear J.C.T.S.,
And our feet will higher climb!

As we climb the ladder higher,
Reaching nearer to success,
We will ask God in Heaven,
To please J.C.T.S. bless.

CLASS HISTORY

"So often do the spirit of great events stride on before the events, and in to-day already walks to-morrow."

On August twenty-seventh, nineteen fifty-two we entered the high school with one hundred-one enrolled as freshmen. We soon overcame our fear of the upperclassmen and the hazing that was received from them, disappeared. Our advisors were Mrs. R. C. Dublin, Miss B. B. Jones and Miss W. C. Tyler. Our class was well represented in most of the activities, Barbara Arrington, Della Carroll, Mary Jean Smith, Florence Bradley, Annie Rose Bell, Hubert Avery, James Barbour, James Judkins and James Hines were members of the basketball team. Harry Obey, Eddie M. Sanders, James Barbour and Ellis Lee Jones played in the band. We even had an unusual honor, some of the officers of the Student Council were freshmen, namely-Etta Joyce Saunders, secretary, and Alice Williams, treasurer. The year seemed long and tiresome, but was indeed a very profitable and a happy one for us; So, with satisfied minds, we said, "Goodbye to our freshman year."

After what seemed like a very short vacation we began our sophomore year with seventy-five classmates. We enjoyed knowing we would no longer be called green freshmen, but wise sophomores. Mrs. R. C. Dublin, Miss B. B. Jones and Mr. J. A. Long greeted us as homeroom teachers. We acted under the class leadership of James Judkins as president and Marilyn Frazier, secretary. Our class was still represented in all of the major activities, namely-Band, Basketball, Student Council and Choral Club. The year was soon over and we received our cards telling the good news-you are now Juniors!

With sixty-eight Juniors enrolled we began the year with the most cherished event of the year in mind. I am sure you have guessed by now, yes that's right the Junior-Senior Prom. We knew of the expense attached; therefore, we started preparing for it early. Our minor events were the HALLOWEEN CARNIVAL and then the SWEETHEART'S BALL on St. Valentine's night. Mrs. D. S. Whitaker, and Miss E. L. Howell joined Mrs. R. C. Dublin as our class advisors! We were very sorry to lose Miss B. B. Jones and Mr. J. A. Long as homeroom teachers. The class officers were Ellis Jones, president; Marilyn Frazier, secretary; Joseph Mitchiner, treasurer; and George Benton, Business manager. After much thought and desire to give the departing seniors the type of prom they might always remember, we decorated the gym in the form of an ocean liner in keeping with our theme which was, "Ebbtide." Our motto was, "We Have Crossed the Pond but the Ocean Lies Ahead." As the guests boarded the J.C.T.S. Liner, we greeted them with pride and dignity. The prom was declared a complete success and everyone present boasted of a most enjoyable evening.

Soon we were seniors, yes mature seniors; seniors in the fullest meaning of the word. Because we were mature seniors we enjoyed participating in the many and almost exhausting activities that are featured for the senior year. We had many class meetings to consider such important issues as class rings, invitations, gift to the school, the annual (The Hawk), Parent-Senior Banquet, trips and tours and graduation! Because of the untiring and our devoted advisors, Mrs. R. C. Dublin, Mrs. D. S. Whitaker and Miss E. L. Howell, we had all of the above activities under control.

Our class officers were Joseph Mitchiner, president; Hattie Haley, secretary; Ellis Lee Jones, Business manager and George Benton, treasurer.

Ending our years with fifty-five seniors. We can truly say, "We have been endowed with much knowledge during our four short years. Experience and pleasures have been many. Yes, we have suffered a few sorrows too. Yet, we are indeed grateful to the Training school and its staff for the Training we received."

CLASS PROPHECY

One afternoon while I was sitting by a brook under the shade of a beautiful and wide-spread weeping willow tree, I contemplated the future of my classmates. As I looked into the dark brook, I saw these words. "We have crossed the brook but the ocean lies ahead."

I also saw these words. "Gaze into this brook and what you want to know, will be revealed unto you."

Before me I saw a modern hospital that had been constructed by none other than Reginald Holmes. Willie Smith, who is an architect, had designed the one hundred twenty-five-bed hospital. Reading the names of the medical staff was like reading from a Who's Who. Most of the names on the roster, belong to classmates of Dr. Ellis Lee Jones. Dr. Jones is a senior surgeon. Grace Walker, a heart specialist, James Smith, an eye-ear-nose and throat specialist, and Bettye Jean Barnes is an optometrist.

His nurses? They too are classmates. Florence Bradley, head nurse on the children's ward; Minnie Dublin, Alice Jean Gales, Sarah Penny and Joann Royal are working on the maternity floor; Carrie Sanders, Hunter Sanders and Earlene Watson are comforting and treating the patients in the clinical section of this beautiful hospital!

My time was very limited! I left the bank of this brook of revelations and the shade of the beautiful weeping willow tree to motor in my '66 Pontiac through the well-remembered section of Belmont.

"Come to Mattie Lassiter and Lina Altman's Beauty Salon _____ Alice Jean Peacock, manicurist."

These were the words on a sign to my right as I turned at the corner of Massey and Collier Streets. I didn't stop. I was too anxious to go on! Further more, my attention was completely captured by the precious sight of my dear Alma Mater, the Johnston County Training School. As I parked in front of the school, the driver education students rode by in a 1966 Mercury! Later I learned that the driving instructor was Lindsay Williams.

As I visited the classes, I found that some of the teachers were Joseph Mitchener as science teacher, Hattie Haley as home economics, and Charlotte McClamb as mathematics and English teacher. The music teachers were Lizzie Clark and Marilyn Frazier. Ann Hilliard and Alea Vinson were librarians. James Hines had taken Mr. Randall's place in the brick masonry shop. Barbara Arrington, Ella Archibald and Eddie M. Sanders were the new elementary teachers. Melvin Powell was the director of girls' athletics and Hubert Avery was the director of boys' athletics.

While sitting in the front hall near the receptionist's desk, I selected a newspaper from the magazine rack and was delighted to read that James Judkins is an X-Ray technician now. He has opened an office on the third floor of the Empire State Building. Donnie Nixon has at last become a dentist. Lou Glenda Allen has her own dress shop on Fifth Avenue.

James Barbour, Earl Parker and George Benton had received their master's degree in engineering. Harry Obey has become a well known Presbyterian minister. Jean Benton is an assistant librarian at the Library of Congress.

Della Carroll had recently opened Carroll's Business School in New Mexico. She took Etta Joyce Saunders, Alice Faye Williams, Mary Jean Smith, Dorothy M. Williams, Annie Rose Bell and Irene Blackmon with her as members of her faculty.

So, as my mind was still being entertained by the wonderful thoughts and memories of my classmates, I returned to my Pontiac to drive back to the brook and the weeping willow. Once again I looked into the dark waters. As the shadows of the day lengthen into the darkness of the night these words appeared before my eyes.

“Go now. Return in 1976. Gaze into my waters in another ten years and the activities of your classmates shall be revealed unto you again.”

Who am I? I'm one of your classmates too. But since the cool, running waters of this brook have so clearly foretold so much about us, let's keep on thinking of our Class Prophecy, as coming from the
